

Call for Book Proposals:

Critical Animal Studies Book Series

with Rodopi Press

www.Rodopi.nl

A Project of the Institute for Critical Animal Studies (ICAS)

A Book Series that challenges animal studies and research and emphasizes the immense importance of animal advocacy for a humane, democratic, peaceful, and sustainable world.

Taking an interdisciplinary approach to questions of social change, moral progress, and ecological sustainability, the Critical Animal Studies Book Series will connect with a broad range of disciplines such as feminism, globalization, economics, queer and trans studies, science, history, environmental studies, media studies, political science, sociology, religion, anthropology, philosophy, and cultural studies.

We accept proposals, not full manuscripts.
We will accept one sample chapter with your proposal.

Review Process:

Upon receipt, we will forward your full proposal to the Editorial Board of the Critical Animal Studies Book Series for consideration. It will take approximately a month for the board to decide whether to proceed with your proposal. We will then submit it to the Publisher (Rodopi Press) for an additional review process.

For more on proposal guidelines, style and the review process, please visit:

www.criticalanimalstudies.org

Send Submissions to:

Vasile Stanescu
Stanford University
Senior Co-Editor, Promotions and Outreach